THE MONROE INSTITUTE BULLETIN

RT. 1, BOX 175, FABER, VA. 22938 • (804) 361-1252

BUDDY, CAN YOU SPARE SOME TIME?

In our continuing efforts at THE MONROE INSTITUTE (TMI) to make all our offerings more useful to our membership, we are asking readers of the "TMI BULLETIN" to take a more active role in producing this quarterly publication. We're introducing several new columns that, if they are to be successful, will require your input. If you have a literary bent, we welcome your poems and prose for the "Reflections" column. If you've discovered new ways to apply HEMI-SYNC to your daily life, let us know, and we'll print them in a "Practical HEMI-SYNC" column. Or, if you have questions regarding your HEMI-SYNC tools or your experiences, please forward them to TMI for a "Q & A" section. If your mind works in mysterious ways, you might want to submit a puzzle for the new "Hemi-Think" feature beginning next quarter. All material for the "TMI Bulletin" should be addressed to: Leslie France/TMI/Rt. 1, Box 175/Faber, VA 22938. Help us have FUN with your bulletin!

REFLECTIONS

The purpose of this column is to offer our membership an opportunity for creative expression. We encourage you to use this forum for sharing your thoughts, hopes and ideas, serious or whimsical, in verse or essay, on subjects relating to the limitless field of human consciousness.

So let those creative juices flow, and send your efforts along to us! We only ask that you stay within the bounds of good taste (tweaking noses and/or being slightly risqué' is ok, but we don't want to seriously offend anyone) and reasonable length. To get the ball rolling, a member of our staff (who wishes to remain anonymous) submitted this poem for your perusal.

The Thread

Within the fabric of the Universe,
There is the thread of Understanding.
A thread finer than silk -- stronger than steel.
Look not within the warp of time,
Look not within the weft of space,
To find the thread.
For the wheel upon which we spin the thread is pure energy;
The loom upon which we weave it is unbounded creativity;
The shuttle -- thought.
Your intricate tapestry, rich in color and creative flow,
Is different from mine --
Yet they share the common thread.
We cannot use another's loom, nor change a pattern not our own...
But we can sew our tapestries together into a larger whole,
With that thread of Understanding,
And a needle made of Love.

SEEKING PERSONAL GUIDANCE

This new EXPLORER TAPE, "Seeking Personal Guidance" (#32), is somewhat different from previous EXPLORER excerpts. During a recent GUIDELINES program, Explorer ROMC came as a guest speaker.

With Bob Monroe serving as monitor, two non-physical entities spoke through ROMC to the participants. The results are not only entertaining, they also convey some very illuminating insights about getting in touch with inner guidance.

"BECOME THE SONG"

TMI is now offering "Become the Song," an audio cassette of heart stirring and mind stimulating songs that have been written, produced and performed by New Age Singer/Songwriter Alan Phillips. Originally composed on acoustic 12-string guitar and piano, they have been beautifully arranged with a colorful variety of orchestral and synthetic sounds. Alan brings a unique style and message through the medium of song in a way that gracefully reveals the years of consciousness study and personal growth that inspired these compositions. Whether listened to purely for relaxation and pleasure or for philosophical intrigue, "Become the Song" is sure to be treasured for years to come for the listening enjoyment and personal insights it evokes from its listeners. Available through TMI for $9.95 plus $2.00 shipping.

REACHING OUT

The Gateway Outreach (GO) program is a network of accredited GO Trainers throughout the United States and other parts of the world, who offer 2-day Hemi-Sync workshops called Excursions. The Excursion allows participants to experience levels of consciousness through Focus 12 - the expanded state of awareness. Combining taped exercises, group discussion, workbook exercises and short lectures, the Excursion provides an opportunity to become familiar with the Hemi-Sync technology and to build a repertoire of tools and techniques which can be integrated into one's daily activities.

The following Excursion Workshops are scheduled for the next few months:

GO KUDOS

This issue's GO TRAINER OF THE QUARTER is no stranger to the Gateway Outreach Network. His dedication to the personal success of each GO Trainer is evidenced by his offer to publish GO!OD VIBRATIONS - a newsletter linking Trainers in the field. Since his accreditation in May of 1986, he has trained 32 Excursion participants and has programs scheduled through this spring.

We are pleased to acknowledge John Dumais for his outstanding outreach efforts to provide the public with experiences of value through the Excursion Workshop, for his seasoned professionalism, and his clarity of intent.

KUDOS (cont'd)

John has a degree in Psychology from Harvard College. His background is in counseling, program development, writing and metaphysical studies. He currently offers programs through his organization, Awareness for Living, in Beverly, Massachusetts.

Our heartiest thanks and congratulations, John, for a job well done!

THE ULTIMATE JOURNEY

The Ultimate Journey is the working title of Bob Monroe's new book. The following interview deals with Bob's thoughts on this new project, which he says is currently "fairly well outlined."

Q: What is the ultimate journey?

A: That's the trip we all take when we exit this reality system -- I don't like to use the word death because of the negative implications it has in our culture. I've been developing the structure and tone of this book the same way I developed the structure and tone of Far Journeys: by sharing tidbits of it with GATEWAY VOYAGE participants during my evening presentations and seeing how they swallow and digest the concepts. The problem in writing such books is not in the knowing of the material, but in how to translate it into a form that is understandable... not necessarily acceptable, but understandable to our culture.

Q: Would you care to share some of those "tidbits" with us?

A: Basically, we exist in waveforms. One key waveform is our entry point at birth and our exit point at death. That portion of the sine wave represents the "here", implying that the other half of the waveform, above the baseline, represents a "there", of which normal consciousness has little or no access or memory. When we examine that waveform more closely, we see that it is primarily a carrier for another waveform with a slightly different baseline. We spend approximately 2/3rds of our time below the line in wakefulness and 1/3rd above the line in sleep -- another "here/there" situation. And in theory, there's another, tighter sine wave imposed on waking consciousness and we're probably spending half our time "here" and half "there." For example, we know our perception of being "here" is limited by frequency. Just as when we see a series of still pictures flashed before our consciousness at 24 frames a second we see it as "motion pictures." That implies we might have the same limitation of perception in physical-matter reality and we are simultaneously existing elsewhere.

ULTIMATE JOURNEY (cont'd)

And realize this is only a two-dimensional model for basic understanding. When you add a third dimension, and 360 degrees and fractions thereof around that baseline, the implications are tremendous.

One of my favorite questions is: Does HEMI-SYNC and the GATEWAY process enable us to perceive these other realities? The book takes the premise that exit/death and survival beyond it is just as natural as entry/birth. If the average person can realize that he already has a great deal of experience "there," the whole process becomes far more understandable and far less frightening. Additionally, we are at a point in human existence that we can become much more aware of our "unconscious" self or selves. Probably many of those now in mental institutions are simply more aware than most of these other existences and just do not know how to integrate this knowledge.

Q: Why are most of us unaware of these other parts of our consciousness?

A: Probably for a number of reasons. In the past, it's been essential for the survival of consciousness -- and that's usually translated into the overwhelming desire for physical survival. Apparently, there are certain things that can only be learned in a physical environment with this separation of consciousness. If one fully understood the "there" at all times, the scenarios we play out wouldn't have the same learning or growth potential.

Q: Why do you think humankind might now be ready to understand the "there?"

A: This is not to say that other small segments of human culture haven't understood this before... but now, a significant number of humans (certainly not the majority, but apparently enough) have grown intellectually so as to consider this other aspect and are able to receive input about this other reality without it destroying their consciousness. That's part of the learning process. The big barrier now is learning how to cope with it emotionally.

As this new overview comes into being, it can mean living a far more fulfilling life in physical-matter reality. And my intent in The Ultimate Journey is to provide those who are able to take such an overview with some very basic tools and exercises that will assist and accelerate the process. It will also provide various affirmations that can help those who are suffering from a terminal illness to "let go" and take the ultimate journey. I'm considering a subtitle: "Death, There is No Sting."
